

Be Ready

.....to help your community
when disaster strikes.

The Ready When the Time Comes (RWTC) program trains employees from partnering corporations and mobilizes them as a community-based volunteer force when disaster strikes. Following a large-scale disaster, the American Red Cross typically gets a lot of calls from people who want to volunteer, but what's really needed are volunteers who have had some prior disaster training.

This innovative partnership will save lives and help people in communities affected by disasters, whenever and wherever they occur.

Help us ensure that we will be “Ready When the Time Comes”!

RWTC is a mutually beneficial partnership that:

- Provides a way for companies to be involved in their communities by responding to community needs after a disaster.
- Allows companies to give back to their communities in a visible way.
- Associates a company's name and brand with the American Red Cross.
- Gives employees an opportunity to volunteer to meet a high priority local need.

If your business or organization would like to hear more about the American Red Cross Corporate Volunteer Program, Ready When the Time Comes, contact Nancy Olson, 843-764-2323 x 321 or olsonn@usa.redcross.org.

www.lowcountryredcross.org